Hi Seymour -

I think I've died and found my way to heaven. What an amazing place this northern Calif. is! I've been here for a week - During the day I'm tied up working but in late afternoon/evenings I get to play tourist. Yesterday (Sat) I drove down 35/81 south to Pae, through mountains and down coast to Santa Cruz, Carmel and The Big Sur. I can remember cutting wisdom teeth on Robinson Jeffers' poetry & could picture him writing in that incredible place. I talked to John Turner this morning, in fact I'm on my way to his 'Not So Naive' exhibit at First Museum. Also talked to living Sarah here and Flo Laffal at home. She said she met with a reporter and photographer from The Waterbury paper a few days ago. They are planning a govt. feature about Holyland in an upcoming magazine section & wanted her to point out the artistic aspects of the site. I've talked to 2 people from the group - there are no new developments as far as Sister Bullair return. Sandy - the group's secretary, told me that Marka Hinton sent me a magic wand from The Orange Show - for use on Holyland! I think will need it! I'm staying on top of what is happening in Waterbury - but it has been a welcome break.

Anyhow - why I'm writing - while digging through my clutter-bound address-book - I found this check application for membership in Spross. I thought I'd mailed this weeks ago. - So, here it is! Please send me your newsletter when it's ready. I'm also stitching a few of the more recent articles that I happened to have in my briefcase, in the note I'll be flying home late next Sat - will probably be spending Sunday afternoon at our Committee booth at the Italian Festival in Waterbury. This Wednesday I'll be off & will be heading up coast toward Eureka & paints in between. - The Emeryville mud-flat sculptures are gone (in the last 6 mo) - However - a Burger King 2 blocks away has about 15 large photographs on display of the same major pieces. - The restaurant owner/manager told me he believed the RR which owns & wants to develop that property - did the vandalism which resulted in their removal. Must have been an amazing plan! The case must have been an amazing plan!
